Mediators encounter ethical issues when dealing with a pro se party, particularly when the other party has counsel. If they try to compensate for parties without counsel, they run the risk of compromising their impartiality. Threading that needle can be an ethical challenge, particularly when the mediator is an attorney, CPA or other professional. This Lunch & Learn will explore the issues and offer practical suggestions for managing pro se mediations. Led by NCRC Executive Director Sara Figal and staff mediator Robin Wheeler (member of the SC Bar), this event will be the first of what we hope will be quarterly CME offerings for Rutherford County area mediators.
